GEORGE “SHOEMAN” HUTCHINGS

As an 18-year-old Marine on a battlefield in Vietnam, George was shot three times in the right hip by an AK47. George was awarded a Purple Heart and evacuated on a C-130 transport plane. During a refueling stop, the back door of the plane opened and frigid Alaskan air came rushing through. A nurse saw the shivering Marine, covered him with an extra blanket and tucked him in. That random act of kindness became a defining moment in George’s life.

After graduating with a Master’s degree from Southwest Baptist Theological Seminary in 1980, George began a series of humanitarian services. In 1999 he delivered 30,000 pairs of shoes to orphans and refugees in Kenya. In 2002 George fed 21,000 meals to orphans and refugees. A pipeline of medical supplies and dental labs was created.

In 2008, George started collecting donated shoes, and sold them to an exporter who in turn sent them to street vendors in Chile, Kenya, and Haiti. The proceeds were used to purchase water-drilling rigs. With more than 2 million pairs of shoes collected since 2008, the organization is bringing clean water to an estimated 200,000 souls.

Shoeman Water Projects is in the process of positioning itself to deliver water to the global community. Invitations to work have been received from India to the Sudan. The work in Kenya and Haiti continue. A major effort is being planned for Haiti in January 2013.

Bring your surplus shoes to our meeting to donate to George’s project.
