CHARLIE JAMES

Charlie James grew up in Webster Groves, MO and earned a baseball and football athletic scholarship to Mizzou. In 1957 he signed with the St. Louis Cardinals, later completing his electrical engineering degree at Washington University. Charlie played with the Cardinals from 1960 to 1964 and was part of the team that defeated the Yankees in the World Series in 1964. Charlie then played for Cincinnati in 1965-1966 before retiring from baseball. In 1972 he bought into an electrical manufacturing business located in Fulton, Mo., where he still resides after retiring in 1999.

Charlie was raised in a Christian home, but really came to accept Jesus as Lord and Savior through a Bible study with a group of his Cardinal teammates. He remains active in his church, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, and other community activities.

In 1957 Charlie married his high school sweetheart Jo. They have two children, Shari and Sam, five grandchildren and one great-grandchild.
